Numeracy K February 1

Activity 1: Counting on Katherine

Materials Needed:

• The book Counting on Katherine by Helaine Becker and Dow Phumiruk, or listen to the read-aloud here. Print out of sheets 2 and 3, and pencils, crayons or pencil crayons.

Task Instructions:

Read the book Counting on Katherine or watch with your child. Pause to discuss important elements of the story. February is Black History Month, so our book connections this month will focus on diversity and anti-racism. It is important that children see a variety of representations of mathemeticians so they feel comfortable aspiring to success in math.

Read through the book a second time and get your child answer the questions on the following pages.

Parent Tips:

You may need to talk to your child about the following vocabulary:

arc: a smooth curving line calculate: to use mathmatics to solve problems computer: name for a person that did mathematics for NASA a long time ago (now we use machines to do that)

launch: to send a rocket into air or space mathematician: a person who is trained in the study of numbers and calculations parabola: a type of curve, such as the path of something that is tossed up in the air and comes down in a different place

segregated: to keep people physically apart from each other based on race variable: able to be changed or adapted yearn: to really want something

Math Idioms:
o count on me
o counting on
o back to square one
o on cloud nine
